1. To improve the English proficiency of the University's students and to enhance their competitiveness in further education and employment, students must pass an English proficiency test before graduation. Therefore, the English Proficiency Test Guidelines for the University's Students (hereinafter referred to as "the Guidelines") are hereby formulated in accordance with the University's Junior College Academic Regulations (Article 42), the University's Academic Regulations (Article 49), and the University's Academic Regulations (Article 68).
2. Applicable Conditions and Related Standards:
The Guidelines are applicable to the University's Junior College, 4-Year College, and Graduate School students. International students (including foreign students, overseas-born Taiwanese students and Hong Kong/Macau students) may choose to pass either an English or a Mandarin proficiency test prior to graduation. The accepted types of proficiency test are determined by the Language Center (see attached table), and the proficiency standards are set by each department, program, and institute. The standards are revised and approved by the relevant meetings of the departments, institutes, and programs, as well as the Academic Affairs Meeting, and then sent to the Language Center for reference.
3. The University's 4-Year College students are required to upload test score certificates (both pre- and post-NKUHT entry test scores are acceptable) to the certification system for their respective departments and programs for review before graduation and for the Language Center to confirm and record. The University's Junior College and Graduate School students are required to upload the test score certificates (both pre- and post-NKUHT entry scores are acceptable) to the certification system for their respective departments and institutes to review, confirm, and record.
4. Remedial Measures
 - (1) If the students of the University's Junior College Year 5, 4-Year College Year 4 and Graduate School Year 2 do not pass the English proficiency standards set by the respective departments, programs, and institutes before the beginning of the second semester, they can take the "Remedial Language Proficiency" course (36 hours) offered by the Language Center in the second semester or during the following summer vacation. The course fee is based on the school's credit fee regulations. The course regulations are set by the Language Center. Students who meet the requirements of the course and pass the final examination of the course will be deemed to have passed the University's English Proficiency Test.

- (2) Students in Junior College grades 1-4, 4-Year College grades 1, 2 and 3, and Graduate School grade 1 are not permitted to take the "Remedial Language Proficiency" course. However, students in Year 4 of 4-Year College who are required to do an off-campus internship may take the course in Year 3.
 - (3) Delayed graduates of the University's 5-Year College, 4-Year College, and Graduate School are also eligible to take the "Remedial Language Proficiency" course.
5. These Guidelines were reviewed and approved by the Academic Affairs Meeting and submitted to the President for approval. The same procedures apply to further revisions.
